I'm off to mauritius on 14th!!

Got a bit of a problem...

Club mistral have no freestyle boards available - and mine has a repair which appears to be failing - from a hole approx 7cm x 7cm x 4cm deep in it..... on the bottom, near footstraps (damn egyptian baggage handlers!). The repair is starting to develop cracks around it & theres water leaking out... eek... what the hell do it do? I need to take it away with me in 9 days!!! help.

...if you speak sweetly to Neil at Surf Tech he may be able to get Jonk to do a repair in that time.....

pegleg came up with a good idea - i hack out the knackered repair, dry the board out for 9 days, pack it up (with large hole) - and beg the guys at club mistral to fix it over night for me, so it will be ready on the 1st morning.... sounds good to me - can u think of any probs?

Probs could be if you do it and they refuse to do the repair due to it not being their board & they bugger it up further!!! Who would be responsible ?? I would check with them first via a quick Email if that is possible.:( :ohmy: :whistle:

how much was rental from Club Mistral ? What about renting a board in UK to take - FunSport advertise 'Advanced' board only £60 weekly. You'd obviously have to do 2 full wks rental tho.

Eureka!!! I have the perfect solution.....

What you do is....

save all the agro with the board, I will go on holiday for you, cus I need a big board anyway and I'm not that fussed what type it is.B)

This solution has 2 good benefits for yourself

- 1) You get rid of the stress of trying to sort out windsurfing kit
- 2) You get a warm glow knowing you have helped me go on holiday:P

I think this is a right result for you, for me, it will be tricky to go a such short notice but I think I will cope!! :whistle:

Ahh well you see I said I would do this as a favour for shawn, I'm not doing it for myself you understand!!

I'm doing this as a purely selfless act to help a stessed windsurfer!!:laugh: :blink:

How nice am !!!:whistle: :evil:

It is very commendable and you should rightly feel proud. I wish I was made of such self sacrificing stuff as you. Or that I had thought of the idea first...

Good work, go to the top of the class.
