
Restoring Kit to original health

Posted by Andysomerset - 2007/09/11 21:37

Does anyone have any ideas as to where I can get replacement parts for a Fanatic Gecko.

In particular, im trying to get the board foot padding that fits the recesses.

Ive googled it, searched, pulled what little of hair i have left, and still cant find anyone who can supply this, or at least one that I can trim to fit.

Another question - Who refurbishes booms. The grip/foam has seen better days. Id like to strip it back, clean it up and put on a new one.

Thanks

Andy

Re:Restoring Kit to original health

Posted by Dan_T - 2007/09/12 09:01

Hi Andy, no idea but have a look on ebay for a whole Gecko you can use. Ebay: Gecko. As for the boom I got some grip from MK Windsurfing a few months back. The guy there was really helpful.

hope thats a start for you,

Dan

Re:Restoring Kit to original health

Posted by TwoFish - 2007/09/12 15:51

You can do a decent DIY job on the boom grip, if you're careful and patient. Part of the trick is to chamfer (if that's the right word) the edge of the grip with a razor blade before you fit it.

Bluechip used to sell the grip and explain how to do the repair. I can't see anything on their site though. You could give them a ring and speak to Brian there (always helpful). <http://www.windsurfer.co.uk/diyboardrepairs.htm>

As to the Gecko bits, have you tried Boardwise? They tend to be good for old bits.
