

---

This weekend (10/11th May)

Posted by sharkey - 2008/05/08 08:07

---

OK so there's going to be very little wind:(

But its going to be sunny and hot - perfect weather to get your kids/mates/girlfriend to give it a go, it is national windsurfing week.

So (blatant pimp) why not come up to the open day at Watergrove - plenty of grassy space to picnic on, bbq on offer, live music in the evening (free camping this weekend).

We've also got some prizes from NWW to give away - come up for your chance to win

Enjoy the sunshineB)

=====

Re:This weekend (10/11th May)

Posted by TwoFish - 2008/05/09 09:05

---

That sounds like it could be a brilliant weekend and hopefully a great way to recruit new windsurfers too.

I plan to head off to Rhossi though for the UKWA event. The wind forecast is about as dire as could be and I doubt we'll see much wave competition. However I figure that with a large tribe on windsurfers on the beach and a big pile of toys, there's bound to be fun of some sort to be had.