
Jamie Knox in June???

Posted by Slim - 2010/02/04 20:39

happy new year to you all you Northern types!!, I am just hoping that it is as windy as last year, and that I am not as Busy as last year!!! Anyway...as the title of the post suggests I am in ireland in June and am wondering if anyone has been to Jamie Knox in June and if so is this a time to hope for decent wind? Any information appreciated.

=====

Re:Jamie Knox in June???

Posted by TwoFish - 2010/02/04 23:08

Hi Slim.

Can't comment on June, but was there for the UKWA wave event in May last year (and hoping to be back again this year), and we got wind-and-a-half. Not all the time mind, but enough to make a good week. I guess as with anywhere that relies on West Atlantic weather patterns, it's uncertain, but if you're looking for somewhere that the odds are good, Brandon Bay must be a good bet. And if there's somewhere where you'd still like to be if the wind fails, Brandon Bay must be a good bet.

=====

Re:Jamie Knox in June???

Posted by Hollingworth - 2010/02/05 15:48

Cool place and the crack is grand. Wind is wind and can be fickle where ever you go but percentage wise your in with a good chance.

=====