
Snow

Posted by jose - 2010/02/21 09:17

I'm getting a bit fed up with the weather now, we have had another snow covering overnight. I cannot wait to get my new board out. It's been well over two months since I have been in the water. We were promised wet windy winters because of Global Warming!

=====

Re:Snow

Posted by Surf Hamster - 2010/02/21 14:15

I'm slowly going bonkers.....(if it doesn't get windy soon I'm gonna do something silly! Skeleton, anyone?:S

=====

Re:Snow

Posted by Slim - 2010/02/22 21:17

If it is any consolation, it is not just the NW. There has been nothing doing down here in Devon and Cornwall for weeks, last time I got out was boxing day.....angry: I am sick of cold shitty easterlies.... Enuff now! (friday looks like it might work out.....:cheer:)

=====

Re:Snow

Posted by Micky_Taker - 2010/02/24 15:22

:ohmy: Wind without 'E' in it at the weekend, High tide 10:30 and above 0 degrees :woohoo: Please don't disappear again I've got to the stage that an unfrozen duckpond like Scotman's was looking interesting and had even checked to see if the Icebergs on Hollingworth had melted (even if it isn't yet June (Soz Pabs Adam etc.:))), See you at W.K. I hope we all recognise each other.:P

=====

Re:Snow

Posted by Marmite - 2010/02/26 17:02

Passed Westkirby lake this morning on way to work at 9:00 blowing 18Knts North westerly
Finished work at 1:00pm and wind had dropped to 9 Knts!!!!!!!!!!!!!! Well Pi---- off

=====

Re:Snow

Posted by jose - 2010/02/26 20:37

Marmite wrote:

Passed Westkirby lake this morning on way to work at 9:00 blowing 18Knts North westerly
Finished work at 1:00pm and wind had dropped to 9 Knts!!!!!!!!!!!!!! Well Pi---- off

:lol: :lol: :lol:

That happens to me all the time, usually after I get in the water.

=====

Re:Snow

Posted by bobapcoed - 2010/02/27 13:12

Looks like a decent NW on Sunday for WK, but Metckeck says it will feel like -2C. No sun to even warm the car interior should you need it.

=====

Re:Snow

Posted by bobapcoed - 2010/02/28 11:37

Sorry take it all back. Absolutely flat.:angry:

=====

Re:Snow

Posted by Marmite - 2010/02/28 13:49

Take a look at the web cam as someone is out and planning. Got to go and get my gear together!!

=====

Re:Snow

Posted by Micky_Taker - 2010/03/01 14:30

Marmite,
It would appear that you require further reference for your new non wind hobby of mushroom collecting. Please avoid the red caps with the little white dots or the ones that look like French liberty caps. B)

=====

Re:Snow

Posted by Marmite - 2010/03/01 21:40

Managed to get an hour planning before the wind dropped,better than nothing. But it was bloody cold!!!!!!!

=====

Re:Snow

Posted by Micky_Taker - 2010/03/03 08:46

Nice one Marmite. Had packed all my BIG stuff Sunday morning and went round to Simon's to pick him up and by 9:30 the wind was dropping.... dropping.... (Hilbre Realtime) the webcam was showing a mill pond and I couldn't see anyone on either the sea or the lake. So thought the better of an 80 mile round trip to watch the booty chuckers. Glad to hear you did get out though. Next weekend? Well fingers crossed :unsure:

=====

Re:Snow

Posted by Marmite - 2010/03/04 14:42

Don't really trust the Hilbre real time figures, up to 10th Feb the wind gauge wasn't reading correctly and not sure its correct now as it always shows a higher figure than that displayed in the hut. Best to ring the hut on 0151 625 2510 and get an accurate reading

=====

Re:Snow

Posted by Micky_Taker - 2010/03/05 16:35

Understood, though Bob's Forcasts can sometimes leave a lot to ponder and the anemometer on the hut is as reliable as the England midfield.
If Hilbre is actually still running high then I suspect that we might have seen some negative wind in the last few weeks
:unsure:
Anyway looks like another weekend of misery. :S

=====