
Night Sailing

Posted by Big_K - 2003/09/26 14:51

If wind holds anyone up for sailing into the night this evening. Stu, I and another had a go at the begining of the week and sailed until 9.00pm. With a fist full of snap lights at the ready i'll see you at West Kirby from 7.00pm (provided the wind holds).

=====

Night Sailing

Posted by Big_K - 2003/10/02 13:41

Unfoutunately the wind dropped but have you seen the forcast for this Friday evening!!! Anyone game to sail Friday Night (3/10/03)???

=====

Night Sailing

Posted by Ernie - 2003/10/02 13:48

yeah but it's gonna be cold - anyone got a spare winter wettie ?

..or I could climb into my old one, one last time - but I may have to be cut out of it. !!!

=====

Night Sailing

Posted by Rabbit - 2003/10/02 18:24

is it getting that cold already?

=====

Night Sailing

Posted by Big_K - 2003/10/03 12:30

Wind is building so it looks like we may get to sail tonight. Ive got hold of a box of snap lights, whos game. Probably gona get to the lake 7.00-7.30

=====

Night Sailing

Posted by MRG - 2003/10/03 12:55

Sounds like a plan! Does anybody know about fitting a car stereo cause supposed to part xing my car tomorrow and want to hand it over with a crappy radio in it. They can do that whilst I get some wind jamming in.

=====

Night Sailing

Posted by Ernie - 2003/10/03 13:51

Bert resist the temptation to fall back on your stock pile of scouse jokes !

=====

Night Sailing

Posted by Big_K - 2003/10/03 16:36

Just got off the phone with Ernie. The general consensus is that the wind will be too on shore for Leasowe so we are sailing WK tonight. Windy Johns better half is intending to capture the footage on camera with the hope of getting a Night sailing article into the mags. C U later

=====