
Off to Rhossey NOW 9:15am

Posted by Ernie - 2004/06/26 09:14

See you there at the demo day for some great sailing F5-6 forecast.

Ern.

=====

Off to Rhossey NOW 9:15am

Posted by kenmorton - 2004/06/26 10:56

Stuck in work till 12 o'clock, but heading off straight after. Should see you there about 2.00 - when the rain should have passed and the wind will have swung round to a perfect SSW 25kts

=====

Off to Rhossey NOW 9:15am

Posted by kenmorton - 2004/06/28 00:28

Fantastic 1st hour - 4.2m perfectly powered southerly, perfect ramps for jumping on the way out and 3,4 or 5 turn waves on the way back in

Then the wind started dropping steadily, spent the next 2 hours or so changing up too late so constantly 0.5m underpowered.

By 6.00 p.m. it was either go 6.2m and 94ltr board or go home and that decision was made for me when my better half (who was enjoying the lovely warm afternoon/evening sun) said I had loads to do at home on Sunday so couldn't come back tomorrow. The next hour or so was spent blasting out with little bunny hops over the swell and surfing back on the now gentle 3-4' waves.

Just wish I could win the lottery and buy the big house that's for sale right on the beach.

=====