
Windsurfing Ambitions This Week?

Posted by David_Whiteley - 2005/01/17 12:33

Anyone got any?

=====

Windsurfing Ambitions This Week?

Posted by Ernie - 2005/01/18 12:32

To view at least one windsuring video, whilst luxuriating in my warm armchair, drinking a warm cup of freshly brewed coffee, in front of my roaring open fire, remembering the days when I thought it was hardcore to sail in temperatures like this.....

=====

Windsurfing Ambitions This Week?

Posted by Mungo - 2005/01/18 13:13

And as it's no longer hardcore to sail in temperatures like this you may as well stay in, watch videos and drink coffee?

I see.....

=====

Windsurfing Ambitions This Week?

Posted by MRG - 2005/01/18 13:34

Ah yes... Ernie,

I noticed Sunday before last (9th Jan) you wussed out on some epic sailing and instead decided to stay in your car.

(Actually, it was crap and you missed nothing!)

=====

Windsurfing Ambitions This Week?

Posted by Ernie - 2005/01/18 14:19

OK harcove boys its,

Blowing 40 kts

Westerly

Empty lake

I'll keep looking periodically, he who lasts longest earns a cup of freshly brewed coffee from ya uncle Ern.....

=====

Windsurfing Ambitions This Week?

Posted by Shawn - 2005/01/18 16:01

On the video thing - has anyone seen any good'uns of late - mine are all from about 10 yrs ago and looking a bit dated.

=====

Windsurfing Ambitions This Week?

Posted by Slim - 2005/01/18 17:59

I have not bought a vid/dvd before as they are always really expensive, but ebay had some cheap ones not long back. I got one that had three on one dvd, aliive by cisco goya is a masterclass, he is a freak... even my girlfriend thought it was good...

I can't see me buying them that often as they are very short and very expensive, normally go for about 20 dont they?

=====

Windsurfing Ambitions This Week?

Posted by lainO - 2005/01/19 14:11

Plug and Play DVD is pretty good, some stunning (impossible) freestyle stuff as well as loads of waves.

=====